Youth Partnership for Investment & Community Service

The Principles of Our Program

At Peak Level Consulting we recognize that even though we are a company that is geared towards providing financial consulting services, we have a responsibility to make a positive impact in our community as well. The Youth Partnership for Investment & Community Service (YPICS) component of our Financial Empowerment Education System is a program designed to provide young people with a solid early foundation in understanding their personal and financial responsibility. With our principle driven approach to teaching financial management and emphasis on using our resources to give back, we encourage the young people in our program to use their talents and skills to further their goals and to make a difference in their communities. With good stewardship as our foundational principle, we make it clear that personal success also comes with the responsibility to make a contribution to help those around us.

We focus on helping our young people to develop sound financial habits earlier in life, and we show them how their efforts contribute to the economy, their own communities, and to the world around them as a whole. We do this by providing a solid foundation in financial education in our seminar modules and the accompanying interactive exercises that help the young people stay involved while they learn. In the process they will see how to implement what they are learning not only for the future, but they will also see how they can improve their lives and their communities right now.

The Importance of Investing in Our Youth

Young people are among the most valuable resources we have, and the more effective they are in contributing to society, the better life can be for everyone. Our formal educational system is aimed at teaching them the skills they need to get a job and build a career. Missing in that formal education process is what they need to know to maximize the financial resources their career can offer them and how they can use their resources for a greater purpose. Through our partnership with the young people in our program, we can fill in the educational gap and help them become more well-rounded people who will become a force of positive influence to all those around them.
